Atrocity Crimes Litigation Year-in-Review (2010) Conference: Northwestern Journal of International Human Rights Now Published and Posted

September 26, 2011

By David Scheffer

As the faculty adviser to the Northwestern Journal of International Human Rights, I am pleased to direct your attention to the latest edition (<https://web.archive.org/web/20111016204352/http://www.law.northwestern.edu/jjhr>) that includes considerable information, analysis, and views about the Extraordinary Chambers in the Courts of Cambodia and its jurisprudence and practice during 2010, as well as the other major international tribunals. This special edition covers the Atrocity Crimes Litigation Year-in-Review (2010) Conference at Northwestern University School of Law, held on January 31, 2011, and which I moderated. Among the distinguished participants was William Smith, the International Deputy Co-Prosecutor of the ECCC and some of whose comments are published in the abridged transcript of the conference. Readers also will find useful information about the ECCC in my Introduction, my Lines of Inquiry Memorandum, and the article by Professor Valerie Oosterveld. The links to the entire issue and to each article are set forth below.

THE ATROCITY CRIMES LITIGATION YEAR-IN-REVIEW (2010) ISSUE

This issue is inspired by the annual Atrocity Crimes Litigation Conference hosted by the Center for International Human Rights and the Journal of International Human Rights. Esteemed practitioners and scholars who participated in the Conference last January 31, 2011, contributed articles discussing the latest developments, ramifications, and direction of international criminal law.
